

Modern Leaders for this Decade

Program 2010

23 July - 3 December 2010

(2 Seminars & 2 half day Networking sessions)

Aims of Program: Leaders for this Decade

- To bring leaders together in order to develop a national and regional network of support
- To enable participants to learn alongside one another in innovative schools to gain skills, knowledge and insights from good practice
- To engage with world class thinkers in education to gain national and international perspectives and understanding of the key issues affecting school performance
- To provide an opportunity to examine the school structures, systems and strategies for leading change in the next decade and to examine the characteristics of successful innovative practices
- To share innovation projects across the group and other leadership programs
- To develop the leadership skills needed for schools in the next decade and to understand the link between successful leadership and school transformation

Gains for schools that support one or more school leaders through this program 2010 onwards

- A structured leadership program for all school leaders that will support the development of distributed leadership and succession planning to serve the next decade school
- An innovation project that will be agreed to by the leadership team, linked to the school improvement plan and designed to raise achievement to set the scene for raising achievement during the next decade
- School leaders will examine theoretical knowledge and clear strategies for developing personalising learning for the next decade

How will the program be set up and what will it contain?

This program is designed and delivered by leading principals and other school leaders based on the 'by schools for schools' approach. It will include seminars and half-day networking sessions with local hosts. Participants will undertake a case study of innovation and change. The main theme of this program is the creation and sustainability of personalising learning in the school, department, and the classroom context to address student learning over the next decade. Access to high quality training and implementation of leader strategies in the following areas are a feature of the program:

Leading innovation & change

- Curriculum
- School organisation
- Learning to learn
- Assessment for learning
- New technologies
- Mentoring & coaching
- Student voice
- Workforce reform
- Advice & guidance

These themes have been carefully prioritised following our analysis of the earlier evaluations of iNet leadership programs, where delegates found this content to be especially useful.
